Our Mission of Healing

AACCS was created to reach out to Asian American families at risk. Its mission is to provide emotional healing to individuals and families, to restore broken relationships, and to offer guidance for positive personal change and improved interpersonal relationships. This mission is accomplished by:

- Providing affordable and accessible counseling and psychotherapy to individuals, couples, and families
- Offering prevention and educational services such as premarital counseling, marriage enrichment programs, parent education, and workshops and conferences on related topics
- Providing consultation and support services to pastors, churches, and other community groups
- Offering post-graduate clinical training to counselors and therapists who desire experience serving Asian Americans in order to become a future resource to the community.

In all its activities, AACCS is committed to the highest standards of professional and ethical practices and is dedicated to practice that is consistent with the Christian faith, its guiding values, and principles.
